

Rowan Douglas Williams the Druid June 14, 1950 - ?

Rowan Douglas Williams, FBA (born 14 June 1950) is the 104th Archbishop of Canterbury, a fake theologian, poet, and lecturer for Satan's church.

Archbishop of Canterbury, the Reverend Rowan Williams, head archbishop of the Anglican Church of England, does not hide the fact he is a member of the ancient pagan order of 'the druids'.

He courted controversy in August 2002 when he was inducted into the Gorsedd of Bards, a pseudo-ancient Welsh honorary order which involves "druidic" ceremonies.

Rowan Williams Biography & Career

Rowan Williams was born in Swansea, Wales, into a Welsh-speaking family. He was educated at Dynevor School, Swansea, at Christ's College, Cambridge, and at Christ Church and Wadham College, Oxford where he obtained his doctorate. He has taught theology at the University of Oxford and the University of Cambridge, where he was also Dean of Clare College.

Dr Williams' summer residence is in the Oxfordshire town of Charlbury, and when resident on Sundays, he worships at the local church.

In 1991 he was elected Bishop of Monmouth, and in 1999 he was made Archbishop of Wales. In 2002 he was announced as the successor to George Carey as Archbishop of Canterbury in the Church of England and, therefore, leader of the Anglican Communion. Williams was the first Archbishop of Canterbury to be appointed from outside the Church of England. (Instead he was a member of the non-established Anglican body in Wales). He was enthroned on 27 February 2003 as the 104th Archbishop of Canterbury. In December 2005, he was inaugurated as the first Chancellor of Canterbury Christ Church University.

In 2006 the University of Cambridge conferred an honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity on Rowan Williams.

Rowan Williams And Homosexuality

2003 saw Williams' views on homosexuality among the clergy in the spotlight, with the issue of the proposed ordination of gay priest Jeffrey John as Bishop of Reading. Following protest from Anglican bishops in the developing world, Williams asked John to withdraw his candidacy, and then appointed him dean of St Albans, site of the first English martyr.

Rowan Williams On Creation In The Bible & Education

In March 2006, in an interview in The Guardian, Williams expressed the view that creationism should not be taught in schools, describing it as "a kind of category mistake, as if the Bible were a theory like other theories".

African Anglican Church Deposes Williams www.reallyright.com/index.php/weblog/2005/09/

In a new African-based Anglican community they plan to replace the Archbishop of Canterbury Dr Rowan Williams as their spiritual leader with the Archbishop of Nigeria, Peter Jasper Akinola, and exclude homosexuals from full church life.

A leading gay vicar - who asked not to be named - said: "I fear for Rowan Williams if he attends the Alexandria Conference. Anglican dissidents will publicly announce that Archbishop Akinola is their new spiritual leader and that there is no place for the present Archbishop of Canterbury in the new community based in Alexandria." "I also hear that African Anglicans plan to place a throne in a conference room and ask Archbishop Akinola to sit in it - while Dr Williams is supposed to stand by and watch. [end of file]
