Kauai eyes Aquarians

UE — Venus Aquarian, speaking for the "Broth-
of the Source," yesterday told the Kauai County
il that the group has been the subject of unkind
s, of threats and of property damage.

"We're offering our energy to serve you," she said.
"I can't believe all that's said about us."

her statements fell

farm and start a co-op, she said. And there is a clo market for fish, so the group has bought a large fish boat and an airplane to spot fish, she said.

Members of the group met with Mayor Eduardo Malapit and told him "we're willing to serve in a way he (the mayor) sees necessary," Venus Aquari
said.

She asked the County for land so the group can far for the people of Kauai. Council finance committe chairman Jerome Hew responded:

"We ourselves do not have the land available for o people."

He added that the state, too, has been unable to ea
ly make land available."

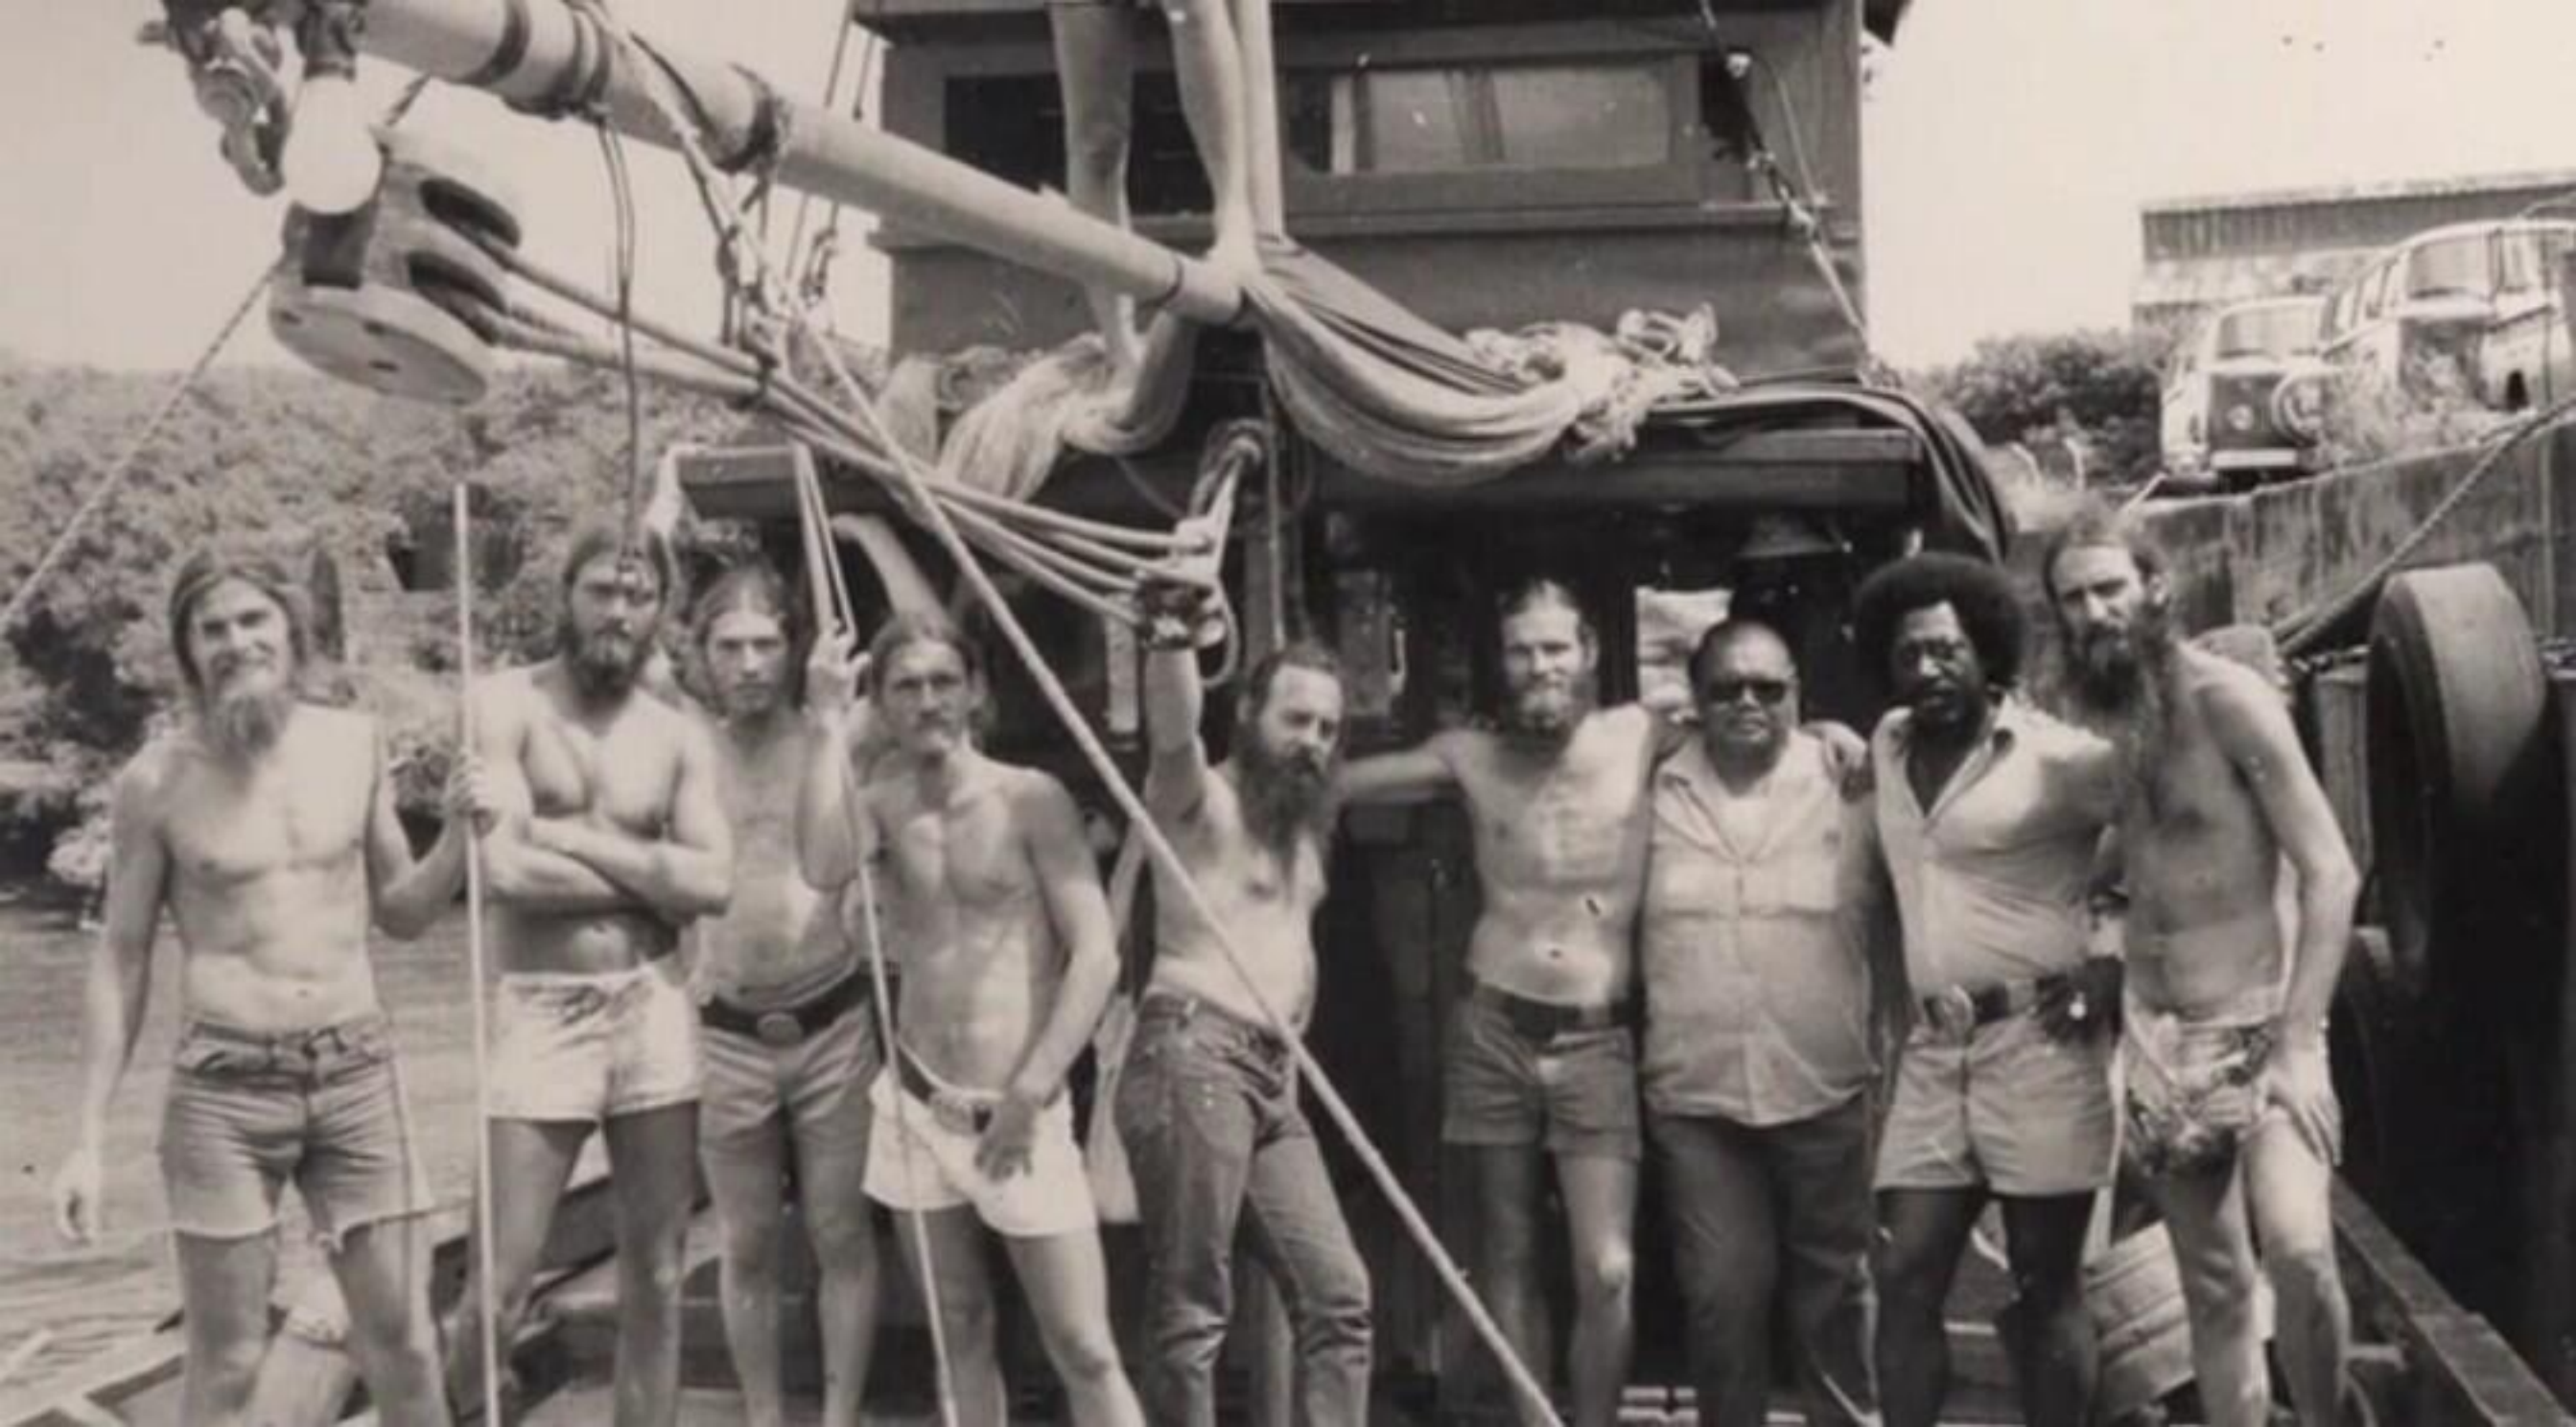

who is buying the farm, claims the Aquarians have not paid rent on the farm since they moved in Dec. 18.

The Aquarians, also known as the "Brotherhood of the Source," arrived en masse on the Island in early January, after the arrangements for the renting of the farm had been made.

They said they wanted to farm, fish and otherwise help the people of Kauai, but complained they were met with threats, vandalism, harassment and contempt.

LAST WEEK THEY apparently decided to move to San Francisco, and their religious leader, Yahowha Ho (also known as Jim Baker), left the Island with a small group of supporters.

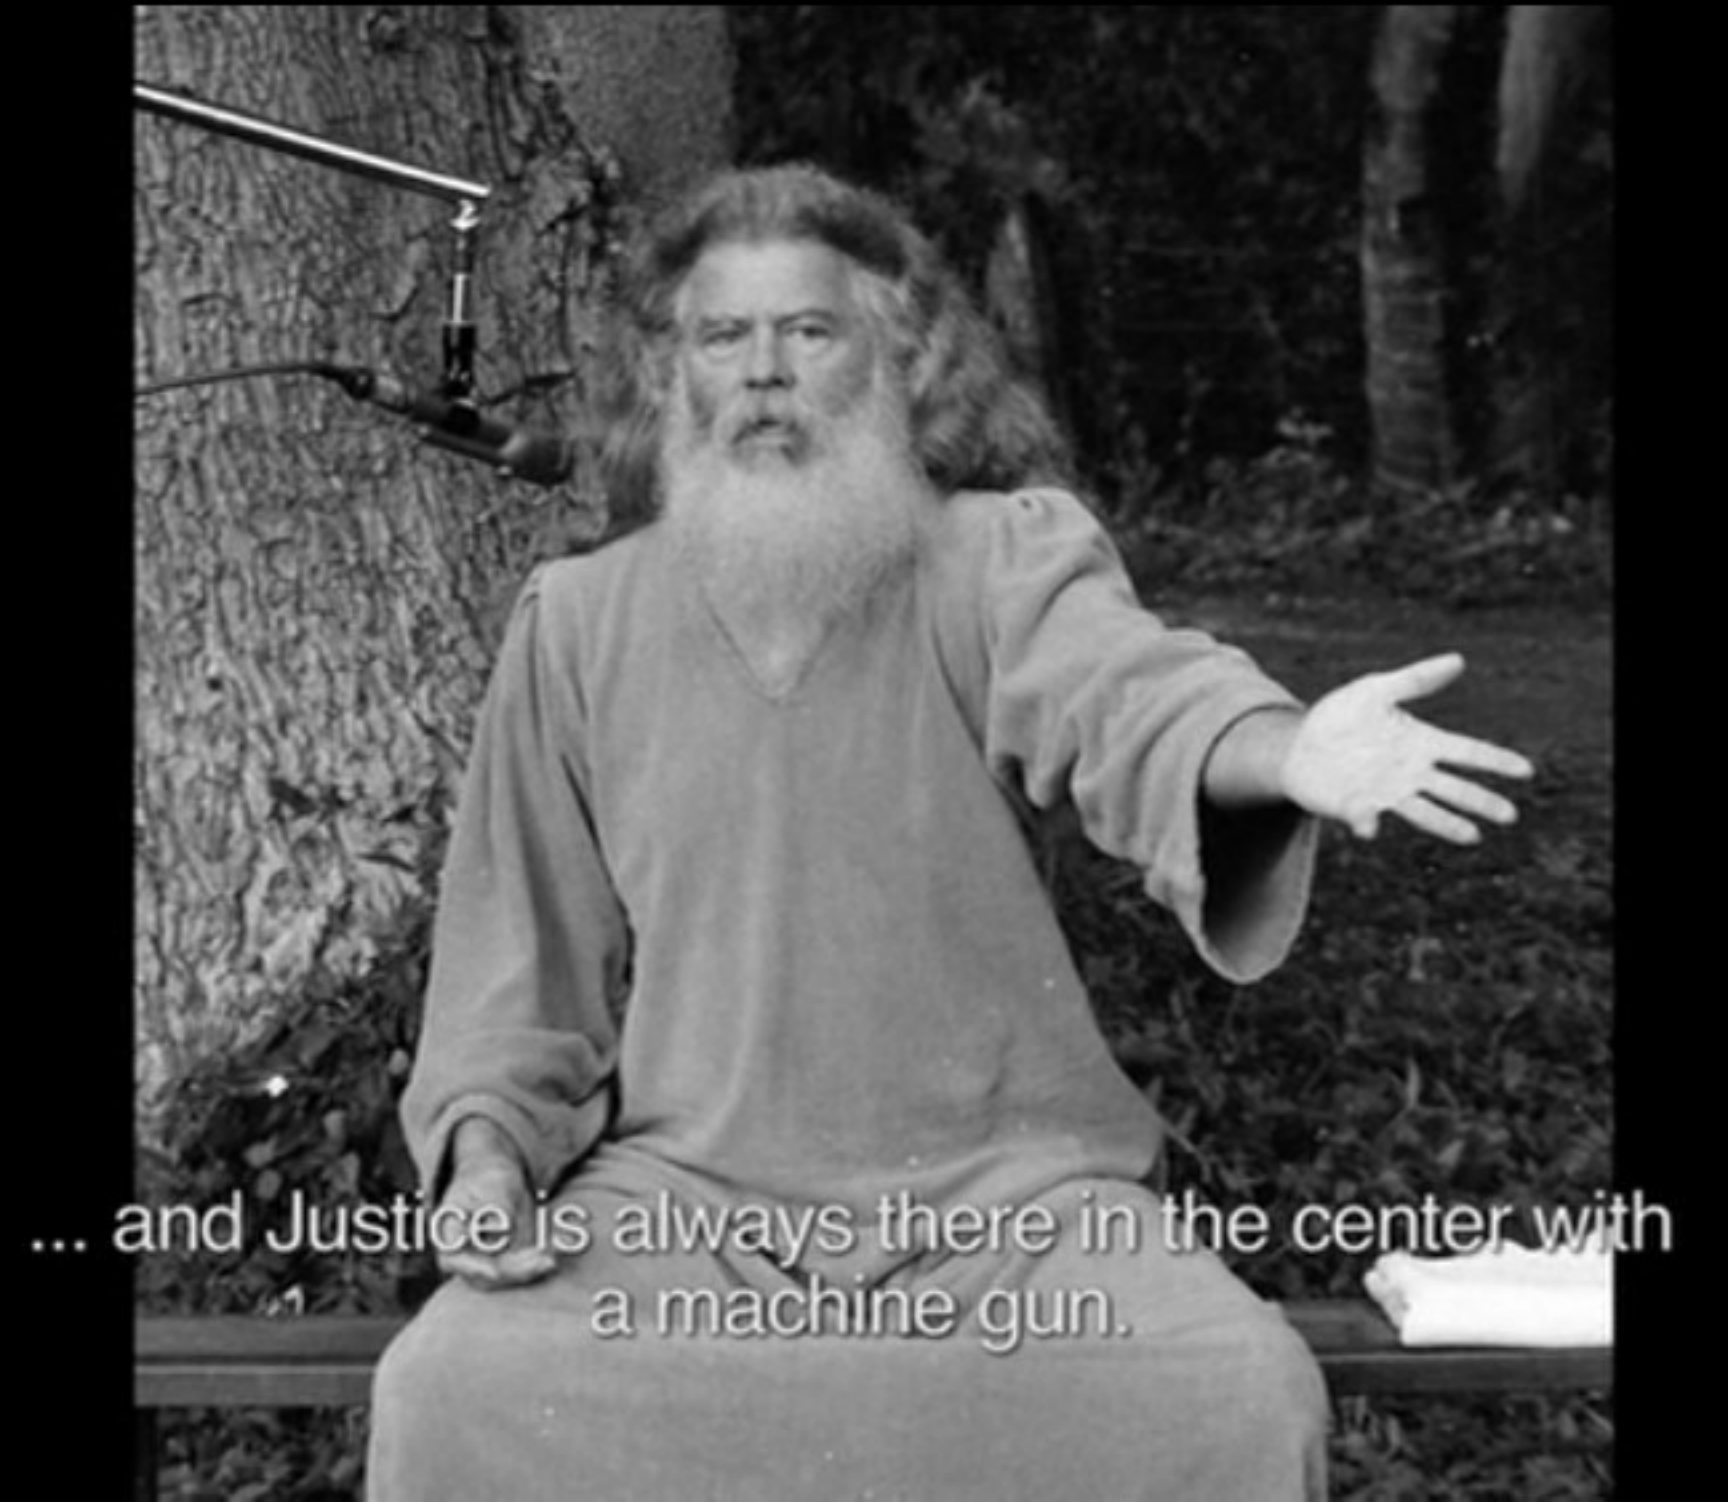

The remaining Aquarians, numbering some 128, applied for State-funded flights to San Francisco on that same day.

Aquarians ask for welfare

The Aquarians are expected to meet en masse today at 1 p.m. with the

In the foreground, several people are visible, some in dark clothing and others in lighter, possibly religious, attire. The lighting is dim, creating a solemn atmosphere.
